New approach needed to deliver on technology's potential in schools