

Italy: apprenticeship continues to grow

Data from a 2019 monitoring report show that apprenticeship for vocational qualifications and diplomas, upper secondary education diplomas and high technical specialisation certificates (Type 1 apprenticeship) continues its growing trend in 2017 (+22%).

This increase can be attributed to legislative incentives for companies and to youth employment measures linked to VET (Legislative Decree 81/2015, which revised the legal framework of the three apprenticeship schemes, and Inter-ministerial Decree jointly signed by education and labour ministries), which defined the training standards for apprenticeship Types 1 and 3 respectively and provided implementation criteria and tools...
